Author : F.William Houraney

Date : June 27, 2014

On January 22, 1973 America lost its soul. Seven lawyers that day decided that fucking without responsibility was more important than life itself. Seven lawyers that day, not Gods, not preachers, not doctors, not anyone elected by the people of America, just seven lawyers. Seven lawyers whose greatest challenge in the real world was to pass the bar exam, which just about anyone can do. Seven lawyers decided to cut the backbone out of a civilized society and crack the foundation upon which was built the greatest country in human history. - F. W. Houraney

The American Soul - July 4,1776 - January 22,1973

We've witnessed too may human atrocities in our great land since our birthday back in 1776. Unfortunately, this is the human condition and unfortunately we're not alone. Most are caused by deranged individuals acting independently to the disgust of a decent people everywhere. This is no longer the case. What once was considered an atrocity, is now law.

On January 22, 1973 America lost its soul. Seven lawyers that day decided that fucking without responsibility was more important than life itself. Seven lawyers that day, not Gods, not preachers, not doctors, not anyone elected by the people of America, just nine lawyers. Seven lawyers whose greatest challenged in the real world was to pass the bar exam, which just about anyone can do. Seven lawyers decided to cut the backbone out of a civilized society and crack the foundation upon which was built the greatest country in human history.

Clinic goes unpunished for disposal method

Charlie Butts - OneNewsNow - 10/29/2010 - A Michigan abortion clinic will not be prosecuted for disposing of the bodies of aborted babies in a dumpster, but a state representative is working to update the law so a similar situation will not occur in the future.

The bodies of 17 aborted babies were found in the dumpster, each with a tag showing the mother's name and the date of the abortion. Republican Representative Rick Jones was shocked upon learning the news.

"Certainly there's been a violation of criminal law," he assumed. But he explains that "a long investigation has taken place, and I've been informed by an assistant attorney general that there probably is no violation of criminal law. The reason: The babies were dipped into formaldehyde before they were dumped."

In fact, current Michigan law allows for aborted babies to be put through a garbage disposer. So Jones has introduced a bill that will enforce penalties if clinics refuse to bury or cremate the children they abort.

"Any clinic personnel who violate the law will be committing a felony. They will be subject up to three years in prison and a $5,000 fine," the representative reports.

Jones already has "dozens of co-sponsors" within the legislature who support the bill. "Many people are very interested in moving this legislation right away," he notes.

If his suggested bill does not pass in the lame duck session following the midterm elections, he plans to reintroduce it during the next session. Meanwhile, Jones says the incident has given Michigan a bad image.
